Incumbents Seek Re-Election to School District Board

Four members of the Moreno Valley Unified School District Board of Education are seeking new terms of office in the election to be held November 5, 1985.

Seeking four-year terms are Board President Frank S. Butler, Vice President William D. Martin, and Arthur M. Robinson, Jr. Cynthia A. Crothers seeks a two-year term. Jack W. Hough, elected in November 1983, is the only member not up for re-election. His term ends in 1987.

Martin, the senior member of the board with 12 years service, has lived in the Moreno Valley for 19 years. He and his wife, Jean, have five children, four of whom attended district schools. He also has five grandchildren.

Frank Butler is known as a careful man with a dollar. Keeping the district on a sound financial footing is a key goal for him. And, since being appointed in October 1983 to fill an unexpired term, he has earned the reputation for being thoughtful and farsighted. "The district should aim to provide the best quality education that we can, and try to make sure the dollars are spend wisely," he says. He is vitally interested in assuring there are adequate facilities to house students, and was a major force in pushing for and helping to develop the new Canyon Springs High School, set to open in the fall of 1987.

Butler and his wife, Cathy, are the parents of six children and have lived in Moreno Valley for 12 years. He is part owner of United California Business and Estate Planning in Riveside and is also a pilot in the Air Force Reserve. He is active in youth and church activities.

Art Robinson has lived in Moreno Valley since 1973 and has been a member of the board of six years, but his association goes back even further, having once worked in the district's accounting department. He and his wife, Vicie, have three children, all of whom graduated from Moreno Valley schools.

Robinson said gains have been made in affirmative action but that "there is still some work that needs to be done. Affirmative action is good not only for minorities, but for the employees and students. It's one thing to tell a minority child he/she can achieve, but it's another thing to have role models so they can see the achievement. Affirmative action should be integrated with the total goals of the district."

Mrs. Crothers has lived in Moreno Valley for six years. She was appointed in December to fill the unexpired term of Judy Neigurger who resigned to become a member of the Moreno Valley City Council.

She and her husband, Ron, are the parents of four children, ages 3-9. Mrs. Crothers said she is personally familiar with the changes and problems associated with the district's rapid growth as her oldest daughter has attended three different schools within the district.

Mrs. Crothers' community activities include coaching the Moreno Valley Marlins Swin Team.

All members had very high praise for the manner in which district administrators have handled the explosive growth and in public relations activities such as community meetings which accompanied the housing discussions and planning. They feel that the current board and administration is a good team, working well together to strengthen and improve the educational process in Moreno Valley.

Allen Chapel A.M.E. Church

Rev. J. Forbes, pastor
Eddie Spears, reporter

The last Sunday in August '85 was spiritually lifting all day. The spirit was really among the congregation and the visitors. The service began with the Choraleers marching in singing, "He That Believeth." They were few in number with many members out on vacation, but that few sang as if it was their last song, from the beginning of the service until the end. The call to worship was by Pastor Forbes and the morning congregational hymn was "We Praise Thee, O God." Morning prayer was by Rev. J.C. Tyce. The Holy scripture lessons were from both the Old and New Testaments, Psalms 11:1-7 and St. John 15:1-13 which was read by Pastor Forbes the decalogue was also by Pastor Forbes. The announcements were read and the visitors were acknowledged. We were indeed happy to report that there were five persons visiting with the Allen Church family on last Sunday.

Our sick and shut-ins are Mrs. Genevieve Elliott at Long Beach V.A. Hospital; Mrs. Elliott was at home for just a few days when there was a fire which caused considerable damage to her home, furniture, and clothing. Mrs. Elliott is now back in the hospital at Long Beach.; Mrs. Ruth McClain is at home resting comfortably at 1970 7th Street Riverside, CA., and Mrs. Pearlline Joseph is still at home at 4989 Easy Street, Riverside, CA.

Rev. Alvin Hill was the speaker for the morning. His subject was "There Is Some One That Loves You." What a soul stirring message. Rev. Hill was so moved spiritually that he got happy delivering his message. We thank God for Rev. Hill.

The afternoon program was that of the Stewards and Stewardesses. They were in processional march behind the visiting choir and our own Choraleers, singing "I'm Going With Jesus." Call to worship was by Rev. J.C. Tyce and the congregational hymn was, "What a Friend we have in Jesus." The Choraleers sang again.

The Rev. Dr. Lee King Pastor of Bethel A.M.E. Church, Perris Ca. was the speaker for our afternoon Stewards and Stewardesses program. Pastor King brought us a message that we should live with and practice each day of our lives. The subject of his message was "The Antidote to Evil." I do wish that everyone in the Inland Empire could have heard this soul stirring message. We are

Scientists Invite Whistleblowers to Speak Out

The Church of Scientology, long known for its effective social reform activities and exposure of government agency abuses that violate the precious freedoms of American citizens, has also provided a forum for whistleblowers — those government employees with the courage to speak out about agency abuses and injustices which they have observed.

In 1975, for example, the Church's FREEDOM News Journal reported on the story of A. Ernest Fitzgerald, an Air Force employee whose career was destroyed by false and malicious reports about him by his superiors, after he exposed the $2 billion cost overrun of a controversial military transport plane.

After reading about Fitzgerald in FREEDOM, former Grumman Aircraft employee Duane Yorke contacted the Church to tell his own story. Yorke had reported to Grumman, the manufacturer of the Navy's F-111 fighter plane, serious defects in the design of the new plane, and copies of his report had been forwarded to the Pentagon.

Shortly after he sent his report, Yorke found his career abruptly ended. He was hospitalized and held incommunicado, and "treated" with electro-convulsive shock therapy and insulin shock treatment.

As the Church reported, Yorke was later vindicated when Grumman Aircraft and the Navy scrapped this test model of the F-111 after confirming the defects that Yorke had originally pointed out.

The Church of Scientology has also released the stories of many Internal Revenue Service (IRS) whistleblowers.

Recently, the Church's FREEDOM News Journal advertised in several national newspapers, asking for current and former employees of the IRS to come forward with information about abuses or illegalities within the service.

One of the first responses was from a former IRS employee, who came forward with the story of her attempts to correct a duplicate assessment of a taxpayer's return. For her efforts, she was informed by one of her IRS superiors that "if the taxpayer is stupid enough to sign for it, you assess it." FREEDOM covered her story, and, as a result, many other IRS employees were encouraged to speak out.

The response to FREEDOM's advertisement was so tremendous that a national coalition of IRS whistleblowers has been formed, consisting of not only current and former employees of the IRS but also open to all American citizens and groups who are concerned about violations of their constitutional rights by the IRS.

The Church of Scientology has also been contacted by whistleblowers from the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI).

In 1979, the Church reported information received from a former FBI agent who exposed the fact that it was common practice within the agency for agents to pocket the money intended for their informants. He also revealed that in order to make their quota of informants, many agents would simply make up names and report them as fact — and then pocket the money allocated for these fictitious informants.

Many whistleblowers who have told their stories to the Church and to the staff of FREEDOM have been greatly relieved to find that the Church is an organization that is concerned enough about honesty and integrity in government to listen to them and accurately report their stories to the American people.

The Church has found that there is an increasing number of current and former government employees who see a need for reform and who are willing to step forward and talk about their experiences.

It is vital that the American people be able to make their voices heard and do something effective to improve those parts of their own government which they observe are in need of reform.

The Church of Scientology's campaign to expose and reform government agency abuses has received tremendous support from individuals and groups throughout the country, who, like ourselves, know that we must take responsibility for protecting those freedoms guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution and Bill of Rights.

Despite the predictable attempts by these government agencies to silence us, just as they have tried to silence their own employees who have tried to blow the whistle on them, the Church will continue to encourage American citizens to speak up about government agency abuses and crimes. The Church of Scientology will continue to set an example of persistence and courage to those who feel it is worthwhile to work toward an ideal civilization where honest men are free to prosper and live their lives without fear.

Question: How can I sun-dry summer fruits?

Answer: Many areas of California are ideally suited for the sun-drying of fruits. The summer temperatures are in the upper eighties to nineties and the humidity is quite low. The sun's energy is free and the job of drying fruits is quite simple. If light-colored fruits are simply sliced and dried, they will turn dark. This darkening, due to exposure to oxygen, means more than a loss of appeal. It also means a loss of Vitamins C and A. The most effective way to prevent this darkening is to pretreat with the fumes of burning sulfur. You will need a guide to give you the exact directions. A not-too-successful alternative to pretreatment by burning sulfur is a soak in another sulfur product. This product is mixed with water and the fruit is placed in the mixture for 10 to 15 minutes. However, there is not enough penetration of the sulfur to protect the fruit from browning during the two or three days required for sun-drying. Consumers who are or who might be sensitive to sulfiting agents, should consult with their physician to determine sulfite sensitivity. Studies have shown that lemon juice dips and ascorbic acid mixtures are quite useless in preventing darkening of sun-dried fruits. Call your local Cooperative Extension office for further information on the sun-drying of fruits at home.

Gas Smells For Safety's
Sake

What should you do in the event you smell natural gas?

There are some definite dos and don'ts if you smell natural gas inside the home, according to Arnold Dickson, Southern California Gas Co. district manager. Dickson said a slight odor near an appliance probably indicates that the pilot is out, but that customers should call the gas company if they are not sure.

"Natural gas is very safe energy source when used properly," Dickson said. "We add an odorant to the gas to give it a distinctive smell so if a leak does occur, it can be easily detected."

If the odor is strong, open the windows and doors, Dickson advises. "Extinguish open flames," he added, "and don't light any matches or operate anything electrical -- not even the lights or the phone, as they could cause a spark. Alert everyone in your house and then get out."

Dickson said the customer should then call the gas company or the fire department from a neighbor's phone.

Give . . . And Let Live

Very soon the traditional giving spirit will be upon us. Many of us will be overwhelmed by an uncontrollable desire to give money, give time, give love, give energy, and give more of themselves.

Because we only feel that it is the "season to give" when the season stops, we stop giving. This should not be. There are still people who need the "giving to continue." Including several public service agencies who need volunteers who can give of themselves "in season" as well as out of season. Are you ready for a commitment to giving. Is there a "void" in your life? Someone, somewhere, within your reach needs your skills, experience, and energy!! Reach out in the right direction.....

FRANKIE MAE CLARK
President of Clark's Computer Supply Corporation, Clearwater

"I used to be unhappy with life in general as I felt it was based on missing information and incomplete truths. Scientology religious philosophy has given me the answers I was looking for. Today my business continues to expand rapidly and I am happily achieving my goals in life."

DR. WILLIAM TUTMAN
Counselor, doctorate in clinical psychology

"To me, success means doing what you set out to do and knowing that the results are worthwhile. I run a successful business and all our services are sold on the basis of 100% satisfaction or no charge to the client. Our services are based on Scientology principles. It works and we know it works."

MICHAEL ROBERTS
TV and film actor

"With the assistance of Dianetics™ (a sub-study of Scientology applied religious philosophy) I was able to see clearly for the first time in my life exactly what drugs had done to my life. This made it possible for me to inaugurate a program which prevents others from falling into the 'black pit of oblivion' (drug addiction)."

CHRISTINA KUMI KIMBALL
Film actress. Singer & Dancer on Broadway, New York

"Before I was introduced to Scientology philosophy my basic concern was talking to agents, confronting people, getting out there and auditioning. I started with the Scientology Communication Course, which made things so much easier."

"Using Scientology spiritual technology has made my career as an artist a lot less strenuous and it has given me a lot of certainty. It gave me a way to look at what was bothering me and really clear it up so that I felt good about myself again. Now I feel positive about life and I'm in control. I'm on a straight line toward achieving my goals."

AMANDA AMBROSE

Singer, actress, mother of five

"In 1968, I was introduced to Scientology religious philosophy, and since then I have had many hours of counseling. I found the most significant change is that I am no longer afraid of anything. I know I can achieve anything I want to without compromising my reality."

HOPE

by Charles W. Ledbetter

The dictionaries definition of hope is; a feeling that what is wanted-will happen, desire accompanied by anticipation or expectation. Spiritual hope tells us that God not only wants us to be with him in heaven, he also longs to live in intimate union with us now.

Hope tells us that God takes his delight in making us holy. (He has so little to work with) Hope prevents us from being discouraged - when we fall, for we hope, with certainty, that God will do for us, What our efforts alone can never do--Make us Holy.

It is important to remember that hope does not just come through words. Some words take away our hope-when they are spoken to manipulate, rather than to genuinely communicate with us. A person feels uneasy when this happens. When this is Happening one experiences a loss of hope. Hope dies on empty words. This type of behavior can destroy us.!

Hope is present in any sincere human gesture of reaching out to another person. This action, using words or gestures, must reveal a measure of concern and commitment to another. Hope demands only these conditions: That we make ourselves both present and available to others. At that moment hope and faith like a flash of lightening leaps across the gaps that divide us. (We are our brother's keeper)

The beginning of hope awakens new life in others. Our understanding of life depends upon our understanding of the fact that imperfect people can and do help imperfect people. They are helped to face life and deal with some of the problems we all find annoying. We also learn to understand self and learn to redeem each other. Hope depends on the faith that says, we are more than the lowly animal, we are more than passively concerned about each other. (The Lions Club, Lions-Quest Program, Skills for Adolescence)

Hope has a difficult birth. We have to forget self-concern at times. This is one of the basic teachings of the "Gospel of Jesus."

Moreno Valley News...

Charles Ledbetter

I learn to hope when I can see another person separate from me and I can reach out and use some of my time for that person's needs rather than my own. Spirituality, I believe, is the source of that action. However the spirit only comes to us the moment we allow some portion of our "self-concern" to die - fro the sake-of another person.

Hope is found in the common places of every day living - where friends touch and go on their way, perhaps a greeting or a handshake, which says "I am with you and will help you in anyway I can."

Hope sometimes has a face filled with wrinkles that remains young, because they take the time to keep close to others in time of need, and hearts are open. Hope is not something connected with the past; it comes along here and now. The idea of hope orients us to somebody else's future, but, with the instructions that caring must begin now, in our homes. Hope ask us to look at each other --- just as we are, right now, before we have a chance to put ourselves down or hid our emotions because we are afraid that nobody will be around to hope in us.

Hope makes us examine our beliefs in others. When we don't hope for much from others, they usually won't deliver much of what they promise. Perhaps the worst killers at large today are the individuals who with hold hope out of cynicism or some sense of self-defeat. Hope has always been built upon faith. Far from being something connected with an unseen world, our faith has it's roots in what we believe about and for each other.

GETTING OURSELVES TOGETHER

Perhaps, if we are to get some perspective on it, life can be seen more clearly for what it is -- a succession of good recoveries from our inevitable mistakes. The art of living well as a Christian lies in mastering that part of life where we have to get up after a hard fall or a foolish decision. The problem is, it is difficult to admit that we have made a foolish mistake. It is better, some think, to gloss it over, or tell the story in such a way that it is somebody else's fault. This action may cover up uncertainty, uneasiness or shame, however it does not get us very far along to developing a positive self-image, which is reinforced by hope.

Faith and hope are so interwoven that at times faith is a certainty that gives us assurance and hope is an assurance that gives us certainty.

STOP - LOOK - AND LISTEN....

For the Young at Heart and Teenagers.....

Dear Readers of Voice News,

Due to the turmoil so many marriage relationships are experiencing, as far as fantasies of what marriage will provide and under current misconceptions of what it is. Tabitha would like to share with you a series of excerpts from "Actualizations" entitled:

"You Don't Have To Rehearse To Be Yourself" by Stewart Emery Part III.....

Very few of us can ask for what we want in a joyful and open fashion, and without guilt. As children we were told that "It's rude to ask." It is somehow more polite to wait to be invited. Well, millions of people are still waiting to be invited.

If I buy the notion that it is rude to ask, I am never going to ask. And if I never ask, I probably will never get what I want. My life will be constructed out of what's left after I avoid all the things that I am afraid of.

If you think it is rude to ask, and you feel compelled to ask anyway, you are likely to ask apologetically. Whoever you ask will not feel good about giving you what you asked for.

One of the great keys to joy and happiness and results in life is to develop the ability to ask for what you want in such a manner that people are delighted to give it to you.

Not only do you need to be able to ask for what you want, you first need to be power of the universes, and the fatherhood and brotherhood of God. Where there is loving, caring and sharing, there is hope.

accountable for being aware of your own wants. A lot of people aren't. A lot of people have never found out what they want because all their lives they have chosen what everybody else told them to want.

A NEW KIND OF AGREEMENT....One of the things that goes on in most relationships is the attempt to control each other's behavior, especially when we are not together. We demand that our partner be a certain way.

I propose a new kind of agreement. It is this: When I am not with you, I will conduct my life in a way that supports my ability to be with you when I am with you. When I am not with you, I will not do things that will interfere with my ability to be with you when I am with you.

In other words, when I am not with you, I will conduct myself in the adventure of life in such a way that when I am with you again, the time I was not with you will have become a foundation for a deeper experience of well-being and even more enjoyment when we are together.

And if there are certain lessons that you have to learn, which I am not in a position to support you in learning, you need to be free to go to where you will get that support.

A relationship should not suppress our adventure or suppress the need with which we learn the lessons that are here for us to learn.

The advantages of being average.

Our Level Pay Plan will show you how.

High or low?
Up or down?

If you're tired of paying gas bills that go up in the winter and down in the summer, maybe it's time you became an average bill payer.

Our Level Pay Plan can take the guesswork out of paying gas bills. And make monthly budgets much easier to plan.

In fact, our Level Pay Plan can help you budget your gas bills for an entire year. Because it helps balance your higher winter gas bills with your lower summer gas bills.

So you face approximately the same amount on your gas bill every month. Summer and winter.

Look in your August gas bill for details on the Level Pay Plan. And to participate, just pay the Level Pay Plan amount indicated on your bill. You can drop the plan at any time simply by notifying us.

If you'd like more information on the Level Pay Plan, just call the Gas Company. And we'll be happy to tell you all about the advantages of being  average.

Oscar White Answers Charges in Val Verde Conflict...

PART IV....

Maybe if he "keeps the staff just enough off-balance" we might have a transient district sooner than you think. I hope not. The big teacher turnover didn't start until he came to the district. It is common knowledge in the Val Verde School District that I am in frequent disagreement with the majority of the Board and the Superintendent because in my interpretation of insensitivity they are guilty on too many counts. To support that statement, during my 3½ years on the governing board I have complained about and voted against issues such as the following:

Val Verde School District Board Agenda, How I Voted....

1.) Development Impaction Mitigation Fee - 4/11/85. How many lay people would understand this wording? This was a Developers fee of $572.00 per lot in this school district for anyone who brought in a mobile home or built a house. The fee was increased to $681.00 per lot 4/11/85, effective 4/11/85 the minute the vote was taken. My vote was the only one against this increase of $109.00. Was this increase necessary? I think not. I know of no immediate need. It is expected that a state lottery will be in operation before the year ends, which will yield much financial aid to schools. I believe some thought should have been given to eliminating the $572.00 fee and give a break to poor people who have a lot but no house and want to build. Imposing unnecessary hardship on district citizens I choose to call insensitivity. 2.) I fail to see the proper concern for school children in this district. Sometime ago, the majority of the board increased the price of milk by $.05. The price the district paid was not increased. 3.) During this administration I have seen the breakfast program for children come to an end.

Dear Editor,

Recently, a letter to the editor was published by Larry Holland.

He claimed that ARG was deceiving people on the toxic waste issue.

I call his letter to the editor a misrepresentation to the people.

The Alliance for Responsible Government (ARG) has held many public meetings. We have never stated that the three councilmembers are in support of a toxic waste site in the city.

Mr. Holland also states that the councilmembers express their deep concern over the potential site. (big deal)

Our City Council has had eight months in which to prepare for the battle in opposing this site. What have they done?

They show concern! They hire an attorney for $7,000 to advise them! They ignore the attorney's advice! They came up with a site of criteria (a miracle can still happen) They failed to justify the site of critieria, when they presented it to Riverside County. (words cannot stand alone).

Now things are moving on the County level. Our council has to cover their backside.

I've heard alot of, words, but where is the action!

I suggest that Mr. Holland attend ARG's September 12th meeting at the high school, and learn some facts before he prints any more half truths.

Letters To The Editor: What's Happened to Good Ol' Sports?

Do you remember when you were able to pick up a newspaper or a Sports Illustrated and read about sports and only sports? I do. But today it's different and a new, destructive influence has entered into the scene -- the abuse of drugs.

I did an "off the cuff" survey of 23 recent weeks of Sports Illustrated magazines and found that 16 issues had mentions of drug problems with drug abuse. Clearly, drug abuse is a problem in sports, but what strikes me is that two such divergent things (sports and drugs) have become intertwined with each other. The two present such a marked contrast.

Does the prominence and publicity of drug problems actually promote drug abuse? What responsibility do athletes have in setting an example? What responsibilities do the leaders in sports (e.g., commissioners, owners, players' reps, etc.) have in ensuring their members set a good example?

Narconon, an international network of drug rehabilitation centers, is designed to handle the physical and mental deterioration that drug abuse causes. The Narconon program was developed by American author and researcher L. Ron Hubbard almost 20 years ago. As he continued his research in the area of drugs and their adverse effects, he discovered the underlying reason for the physical craving for drugs years after taking drugs. The discovery was that drugs lodge in the fatty tissues of the body and remain there. These residuals can also cause sensations and reactions similar to actually being on drugs, years later. In 1979 Hubbard released the Purification program to rid the body of these drug residuals. The Narconon program includes the Purification program as well as personal counseling which locates

JULIAN BOND

Should majority always rule?

By Julian Bond

Is he right or wrong?

In 1971, Andrew Young filed suit against Georgia's runoff requirement for congressional elections. The courts — including the U.S. Superior Court — dismissed the issues Young raised on technical grounds. Until Briant's ruling, no court has ever said that runoff or majority-vote requirements were unconstitutional on their face.

But the second-primary question is one of those issues where there is not an absolute right or wrong.

Despite Jackson's contention that second primaries always work against minority interests, they have helped progressive causes and candidates as often as they have hurt.

Ten years after he filed suit against it, Andrew Young was elected mayor of Atlanta because he won a second primary.

In 1974, segregationist Lester Maddox would have won the Democratic nomination for governor of Georgia had it not been for a runoff primary. He lost that second election — and the nomination — to George Busbee, a moderate.

William Winter, who left office in Mississippi last year after establishing a record as his state's most progressive governor, won a runoff primary in 1979.

Jackson's argument — that making it easier for blacks to win party nominations would produce more blacks in Congress, and that blacks are always eliminated in second primaries — won't wash.

In 1982, South Carolina State College professor Ken Mosely beat a white candidate in a runoff to become the Democratic nominee in the 2nd Congressional District. But he lost the general election to a conservative white Republican.

Where blacks are a majority and where there is strict racial block voting, the majority-vote requirement actually helps black candidates.

Where there is a plurality-vote requirement, whites can agree to back one candidate and impose the equivalent of a majority-vote requirement where none exists.

In 1974, the U.S. attorney general, acting under the Voting Rights Act, struck down a majority-vote requirement in the mayoral election in Thomson, Ga. Two whites and one black ran for office that year. Fearing that the plurality-vote requirement would result in the election of the black, each white candidate named 12 people who met at City Hall and decided which white candidate would withdraw. One eventually did, and the remaining white candidate easily defeated the black.

Whether to abolish the majority-vote requirement or not ought to depend on where and when and how it is being used. In the short term, some black-majority jurisdictions would see blacks lose elections if a plurality system is established.

Andrew Young has a better "litmus test." "(I) has to be the elimination of all methods of discrimination," he says, "whatever they may be, with full enforcement at the federal level."

and handles the underlying mental condition that caused the person to take drugs in the first place.

Clearly, the solutions to the problem of drug abuse lies in having a workable rehabilitation program so that athletes can show us what man, at his best, can accomplish. And that's the kind of thing I would like to read about when I open up the sports section in a newspaper or my Sports Illustrated magazine.
